Experience

Lindsay is a senior family practitioner, mainly representing children and parents in care proceedings. She began her career as a criminal defence barrister before specialising in family law.

Lindsay specialises in serious fact-finding hearings. Her experience as a criminal defence barrister gave her an edge in cross-examination techniques, which she has imported into her family practice.

Lindsay has a particular empathy with clients who have a learning disability or mental health problems. She also regularly gives training seminars in child law and how to give evidence to various organisations.
